Todd Haynes is an acclaimed American independent film director and screenwriter. Born in Los Angeles on January 2, 1961, Haynes grew up interested in the arts and attended Brown University where he received his BA in Arts and Semiotics. After college, Haynes moved to New York City where he made his controversial short film Superstar: The Karen Carpenter Story (1987), using Barbie dolls to portray the life and death of singer Karen Carpenter. Haynes made his directorial feature debut with the provocative 1991 film, Poison, which went on to win the Grand Jury Prize at the Sundance Film Festival, spearheading what would become known as the New Queer Cinema. In 1995, Haynes's 2nd feature film, Safe, starred Julianne Moore as a Los Angeles housewife who becomes environmentally ill. The film would be voted, by decades end, the best film of the 90's by the Village Voice's Critic Poll. Haynes's next film, Velvet Goldmine, an homage to the glam rock era of the early 70's premiered in Official Selection at the 1998 Cannes Film Festival, where it received a Special Jury Prize. Haynes's next film, Far From Heaven (2002), inspired by the 50's melodrama's of Douglas Sirk, and also starring Julianne Moore, earned both critical and mainstream success, receiving four Oscar nominations, including one for Haynes' Original Screenplay. Haynes won several other awards for this film, including the Independent Spirit Award for Best Director. His 2007 film, I'm Not There, imagined the life and work of Bob Dylan through the guise of seven fictional characters, and once again won him critical acclaim, especially for the crossgender casting of Cate Blanchett, who received the Oscar nomination and Golden Globe award for Best Supporting Actress. In 2011, Haynes directed and co-wrote Mildred Pierce, a five-hour mini-series starring Kate Winslet, which garnered 21 Emmy nominations, winning five of them, in addition to 3 Golden Globes Awards.

His latest feature film, Carol, is based on Patricia Highsmith’s seminal novel The Price of Salt. Starring Cate Blanchett and Rooney Mara, Carol is the story of a forbidden romance between two women from varying backgrounds set in 1950s New York City. Carol has received much critical acclaim and many accolades including six Academy Award nominations, five Golden Globe Award nominations, and nine BAFTA Award nominations. It has also been voted the Number 1 LGBT Film of All Time by BFI.

ABOUT BOTTEGA VENETA
Discretion, quality, and craftsmanship — Bottega Veneta has created a new standard of luxury since its founding in Vicenza in 1966. Steeped in the traditions of Italy’s master leather craftsmen and long celebrated for its extraordinary leather goods, Bottega Veneta has recently emerged as one of the world’s premier luxury brands. The company’s famous motto, “When your own initials are enough,” expresses a philosophy of individuality and confidence. There is an unusual and inspired collaboration between artisan and designer at the heart of Bottega Veneta’s approach to luxury, symbolized by the house’s signature intrecciato woven leather. In the summer of 2006, in recognition of the importance of artisanal craftsmanship and the fragility of this traditional way of life, Bottega Veneta opened a school to train and support future generations of leather artisans.

The most recent chapter in Bottega Veneta’s history began in February 2001, when the company was acquired by Kering. Creative Director Tomas Maier came on board in June of that year and presented his first collection, Spring-Summer 2002, to immediate critical acclaim. In the years since, Bottega Veneta has introduced exciting additions to the collection, including fragrance, fine jewelry, a watch, furniture, and home accessories, while continuing to offer an exclusive and coveted assortment of ready-to-wear, handbags, shoes, small leather goods, eyewear, luggage, and gifts.
