A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

In October we celebrated our fifth and most successful Gala, raising over $1 million for the Museum. I am deeply grateful to all of you who supported this Gala, and I am especially thankful to our honorees, Mike Kelley and Miuccia Prada; our speakers, Cindy Sherman and John Waters; and our co-chairs, Susan Bay Nimoj and Leonard Nimoy. Pictures of this spectacular event are on pages 20 and 21.

As you may have read, our current exhibition Francis Alÿs: Politics of Rehearsal received a glowing review in the Los Angeles Times and I am delighted to announce that we have added two important works from that exhibition to the Hammer Contemporary Collection. The Hammer acquired, through purchase, Francis Alÿs’s video Rehearsal 2, 2001, and studies for La Leçon de musique, 2007, were acquired through a generous donation by the artist. We are thrilled to add these amazing pieces to our growing collection. I hope you will have a chance to see these acquisitions and the exhibition before it closes on February 10.

Other outstanding news comes from Germany, where Brice Marden: A Retrospective of Paintings and Drawings, curated by Gary Garrels, our chief curator, was voted Exhibition of the Year 2007 by the International Association of Art Critics, German Chapter. We congratulate him on this great honor.

Finally, I have an exciting, albeit bittersweet, announcement to make regarding James Elaine, our Hammer Projects curator. With a prestigious grant from the Asian Cultural Council, Jamie will begin the next chapter of his professional career and will move to China in the new year. He will remain an adjunct curator for the Hammer Museum and in this new role will use his expertise to seek out emerging artists in China and throughout Asia. This is an important juncture, both for the Hammer and for Jamie, who has studied the language for many years and has a deep-rooted passion and a long-term interest in Chinese culture and contemporary art scene.

Jamie has been the Hammer Projects curator since its inception in 1999. He has organized more than 65 solo projects of international emerging artists in the series, and also co-curated several group exhibitions at the Museum with a similar emphasis. The much-lauded exhibition THING: New Sculpture from Los Angeles, which he co-curated with Almee Chang and Christopher Miles, was voted Best Thematic Show Nationally 2005 by the International Association of Art Critics, US Chapter.

Jamie and I have worked together for 19 years, beginning at The Drawing Center, New York, where he was similarly responsible for group exhibitions and solo projects of emerging artists. He has been at the center of the Hammer’s success for over eight years, and has created one of the most respected emerging artist programs in the world. I am personally thrilled for Jamie and will deeply miss him. Please join me in congratulating him and wishing “our man in China” well before he leaves for this exciting endeavor in March.

Francis Alÿs: Politics of Rehearsal is the first large-scale museum exhibition in the United States devoted to the career of Mexico City–based artist Francis Alÿs, widely considered to be among the most important artists working today. From the beginning of his career, Alÿs has adopted a way of working that tends to reject conclusions in favor of repetition and recalibration. He has put the idea of rehearsal at the heart of his practices. The exhibition focuses on video, but also includes work in a wide range of media, including paintings, drawings, and photography, each piece telling visual stories that can be told and re-told.
Each installation in the exhibition is accompanied by the beautiful and fragile preparatory drawings for which Alÿs is renowned.

"Alÿs is among the most gifted and potentially consequential mid-career artists working today." — Christopher Knight, Los Angeles Times

HAMMER PROJECTS

Hammer Projects is a series of exhibitions focusing primarily on the work of emerging artists. Hammer Projects is made possible with support from The Horace W. Goldsmith Foundation, the Annenberg Foundation, Fox Entertainment Group’s Arts Development Foa, the Los Angeles County Arts Commission, members of the Hammer Circle, and the David Teiger Curatorial Travel Fund.

TERRY HAGGERTY
THROUGH JANUARY 6, 2008
Terry Haggerty’s vibrant wall paintings conjure nostalgic associations reminiscent of 1960s and 1970s décor and optical art. He combines humorous and historical references to form abstract compositions that manipulate and electrify the space around them. Using simple parallel lines and arcs, he generates masterful geometries that seem to bend and curve each wall.

KAARI UPSON
NOVEMBER 27, 2007 – FEBRUARY 17, 2008
Several years ago, Kaari Upson found some discarded personal items that belonged to a stranger. Digging into this man’s past, she made him the primary subject of her artwork. For her Hammer Project, Upson introduces her drawn, painted, and videotaped interpretations of this real man’s story, illustrating several possible profiles of a man she may know better than herself.

RELATED PROGRAM

ARTIST TALK

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 7PM

THOMAS LAWSON, Dean of the School of Art at CalArts, talks to Kaari Upson about her installation and her investigations into assumed identity.

KAARI UPSON
AARON MORSE

JULY 13 – JUNE 12, 2008

Aaron Morse is a Los Angeles-based artist whose paintings depict epic collages of imagery pulled from sources as divergent as 20th-century American politics, 19th-century Romantic literature, comics, art historical painting genres, and current events. For the Hammer Museum’s lobby walls, Morse will create Timeline, a monumental wallpaper design that has been printed and reworked by hand-painting.

ARTIST RESIDENCY PROGRAM

The Hammer Museum’s Artist Residency Program was initiated with funding from the Hinoy Foundation and is supported through a significant grant from the James Irvine Foundation.

During the past year the Hammer Museum has hosted a number of artists in residence, including Kendall Carter, Erik van Lieshout, Jamie Ienestien, arc Doris Salcedo. Unlike traditional residency programs that offer solitude and provide space for introspection, the Hammer’s residences are designed to give artists access to the resources of UCLA and Los Angeles.

Recent artist-in-residence Jamie Ienestien (September–November 2007) used her time at the Hammer to create a new installation, This ode to the Egress, 2007, which included her presence as the Egress in the Hammer’s lobby gallery throughout the run of the exhibition. She also performed an older work, Arm Croat, 2006, on the UCLA campus and in various locations around the city. These performances are the first Eienstien has done outside of the art context, allowing her to further explore her interest in performance, sculpture, and display.

From November 2007 to February 2008, video artist Johon Grimonprez will be in residence at the Hammer finishing work on his new video on Alfred Hitchcock and his many doubles. Looking for Alfred, upon completion the new film will premiere at the Billy Wilder Theater.

UPCOMING EXHIBITIONS

KARA WALKER: MY COMPLEMENT, MY ENEMY, MY OPPRESSOR, MY LOVE
MARCH 2 – JUNE 8, 2008

Kara Walker: My Complement, My Enemy, My Oppressor, My Love is a comprehensive survey of the work of one of the most acclaimed artists of her generation. Walker’s work ranges from small, intimate, delicately executed drawings to expansive installations of sharply cut black-paper silhouettes. Light projections, video installations, and text works also are included in the exhibition. Her work deals with the complexity of race relations America which is rooted deeply in our history. The characters and stories that are portrayed are both alluring and highly disturbing, beautiful but often repugnant, rendered with exceptional formal and technical sophistication. Walker is an artist of remarkable originality who, fusing craft with content, expands aesthetic and cultural perception.

And then again... Printed sets and series, 1500-2007
MARCH 23 – JULY 13, 2008

This exhibition focuses on the history of sequential imagery in prints from the early European Renaissance to contemporary artistic practice. Drawn primarily from the extensive collection of the Granum Center for the Graphic Arts, the exhibition will begin with such traditional Renaissance and Baroque narrative subjects as the Four Seasons, The Labors of Hercules, the Passion of Christ, and the Apocalypse. In the seventeenth century, Dutch artists adopted the series format for the depiction of landscape, focusing for the first time on local topographical views. Later in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, print series depicted the remote or exotic locales favored by European travelers. The series format remains viable today and is represented in this exhibition with prints by contemporary artists such as John Baldessari, Mona Hatoum, Barry McGee, Catherine Opie, and Richard Tuttle.

DIAL H-I-S-T-O-R-Y
FEBRUARY 12 – APRIL 21, 2008

Directed by current artist in residence Johan Grimontpez, the video Dial H-I-S-T-O-R-Y is a unique chronicle of airplane hijackings up until 1997, the year the film was released. Made from a wealth of found footage including television coverage of hijackings, various propaganda films, cartoon clips, and training videos, the piece explores the history of the past thirty years with a focus on the revolutionary impulse and the increasing prevalence of media in our daily lives. These clips are combined with passages read from Don DeLillo’s novels White Noise and Mao II addressing the authorship of history, turning our attention to the ways in which we encounter and interpret the events of our time.

Running time 68 minutes; DVD.

The Gala, which raised over $1 million for the Hammer’s renowned exhibitions and public programs, was held in the Museum’s elegant outdoor courtyard and honored influential LA-bred artist Mike Kelley and legendary designer and patron of the arts Miuccia Prada. The event was chaired by Susan Bay Nimoy and Leonard Nimoy with tribute speeches by Cindy Sherman and John Waters. Guests dined on cuisine by chef Suzanne Goin of Lucques, enjoyed a performance by Antony and the Johnsons, and were surrounded by a beautiful light installation created by Jennifer Steinkamp.
